

STC and Tectonic have partnered with Fellowships at Auschwitz for the Study of Professional Ethics (FASPE) to invite you to join post-show conversations for Here there are Blueberries.

FASPE's mission is to promote ethical leadership within the professions. www.faspe-ethics.org

Fellowships at Auschwitz for the Study of Professional Ethics (FASPE) provides a unique historical lens to study contemporary ethics. FASPE offers annual fellowships to students pursuing professional degrees in business, the clergy, journalism, law, medicine, and design & technology, and to early-career professionals in these fields. Founded in 2012, FASPE has 800 Alumni across the globe.

FASPE has been a research partner to the Tectonic artistic team throughout the development of Here There Are Blueberries. FASPE's involvement now extends to curating conversations with leading ethicists and scholars to talk with audiences about issues and questions raised in the play, and consider their relevance for today.

SCHEDULE of FASPE-Curated Post-Show Conversations:

SATURDAY, MAY 13 (performance at 8pm)

The Next Generation: How Do We Deal with Sins of Our Fathers – Literally and Metaphorically?

Hosts: David Goldman, Founder of FASPE; Father Steven Bell, CSP, Paulist Mission Priest

THURSDAY, MAY 18 (performance at 7:30)

Remaining Decent: German Crimes and Moral Self-Perceptions Hosts: Thorsten Wagner, Executive Director, FASPE; Deepta Shivaram (FASPE Fellow Journalism '22), Reporter, Washington Desk, NPR

FRIDAY, MAY 19 (performance at 8pm)

The ambivalent perpetrator; are you complicit by staying; or are you complicit by leaving? Host:

David Luban, Professor of Law and Philosophy, Georgetown University

SATURDAY, MAY 20 (performance at 2pm)

Doctors at Auschwitz Hosts: Dr. David G. Marwell, author of Mengele: Unmasking the Angel of Death and Martine Powers (FASPE Fellow Journalism '14), Washington Post

Conversations are open to the public and take place after the performance.

Return to Show Page for Here There Are Blueberries.

#QuestionYourEthics